

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a novel treatment for allergy comprising a recombinant allergen with reduced enzymatic activity, thereby reducing the potential for an allergic response upon contact with a wild-type allergen.